In the Paramount Artercraft Special, "The Silver King", William Faversham, the best known actor in the United States will be seen in the only moving picture he has ever appeared in and he has proved himself as sterling an artist in the silent drama as he is in the legitimate, his personality is as rich and fascinating as Hamlet's and he knows how to use it to touch your soul. The whole photograph is filled with tense situations that thrill and exert a powerful appeal; a master piece. Neither time nor money has been spared to raise this picture to the highest standard of photodramatic art. Do not miss this superb production. At the Please U today and tomorrow.

BOURNE ATTACKS TAFT REGARDING POWER OF LEAGUE

Domestic Problems Subject to Lively Retort by Pres. of Republican Assoc.

WASHINGTON, July 21—The Republican Publicity Association, through its President, Hon. Jonathan Bourne, Jr., today gave out the following statement from its Washington Headquarters:

"Mr. Taft is continuing his series of newspaper articles intended to assure the people that every American right is reserved under the league of nations, and that its adoption by the Senate involves no surrender whatever on the part of the United States. Devoting himself to Article 21 of the covenant, which deals with the Monroe Doctrine, Mr. Taft demonstrates, to his own satisfaction, at least, that the Doctrine is amply protected and is merely extended to include the world. His argument starts with a misstatement of fact, and on that false premise he arrives at his remarkable conclusions.

"Now Mr. Taft has applied himself to the tariff and immigration questions as affected by the covenant. Opponents of the league have contended from the first that those subjects would come entirely within the jurisdiction of the league the moment the covenant was endorsed by the United States. The ex-President, of course, takes the contrary view, and supports his contention with statements as astonishing as those he adduced concerning the Monroe Doctrine provision.

"The paragraph of the covenant on which Mr. Taft and his co-workers base their argument is found in Article 15, reading as follows: 'If the dispute between the parties is claimed by one of them, and is found by the council to arise out of a matter which by international law is solely within the domestic jurisdiction of that party, the council shall so report and shall make no recommendation as to its settlement.' Mr. Taft then goes on to declare that we must trust the foreign council to decide that tariff and immigration matters are regarded by international law as domestic. He clinches his argument by quoting the decision of a learned Federal judge who gives it as 'an accepted maxim of international law that every sovereign nation has the power as inherent in sovereignty to limit or forbid the admission of foreigners to its territory.'

"Few statements of the ex-President reveal the change that has come over the man since he permitted himself to become immersed in the league fight as does this declaration. As a matter of fact the decision that he selected proves precisely the opposite of what he had in mind. Mr. Taft seems to have overlooked the fact that our sovereignty would be a thing of the past the moment the Senate saw fit to ratify the league covenant. In that moment it would pass to the superstate, and any dispute whatever involving two or more nations, be it concerned with immigration, tariff, or anything else, would immediately come before the league council for settlement. It is true that the power to limit immigration is inherent in sovereignty, as Mr. Taft sets forth in his quoted decision, but as it is now inherent in the sovereign United States, after the ratification of the covenant it would be inherent in the sovereign league's super-government.

"But let us assume," continues Mr. Taft, "the impossible hypothesis that the council would unanimously recommend that we take in Japanese citizens without restrictions." He then makes the startling statement that we are not bound by his recommendation, nor is the league bound to enforce it upon us. Anyone who has read Articles 12, 13 and 15 of the covenant knows that Mr. Taft's assertion is absolutely without foundation. Those articles provide for the arbitration of the dispute, and the following language is found in Article 13: 'The members of the league agree that they will carry out in full good faith any award that may be rendered.' That means that we must accept the award of the court of arbitration or the council, or have it forced upon us by the league members."

URGES CHILDREN TO CONTINUE BIG WORK IN GARDENS

Reports of U. S. School Garden Army Work to be Continued

WASHINGTON, July 21—The children of America, enlisted in the United States School Garden Army, are put upon their honor to bring to harvest every crop that has been planted, according to a communique just issued from Washington headquarters of the U. S. G. Bureau of Education, Department of the Interior.

The little soldiers, who carry over their shoulders the hoe and rake, "the tools by which human society has built its fabric," are called upon to "See It Through," to tend faithfully every crop already planted, and to carry out the enlistment pledge to "raise one or more food crops during the season of 1919."

Reports from every section of the country indicate that the garden tasks are hailed with joy by the children, and that in the garden they find a fascination that rivals any outdoor game ever invented, and Boards of Education, Superintendents of Schools, garden teachers, supervisors, commercial clubs, chambers of commerce, and women's organizations have already given the heartiest endorsement to the work of the United States School Garden Army, and pledged themselves to continue their cooperation until the close of the garden year.

Garden paths lead straight to the savings banks windows, and the young gardeners tread these paths every week. Garden work gives strength of muscle, steadiness of nerve, a strong pulse-beat, a clear eye, and strength of endurance.

The message addressed to the millions of boys and girls in the garden ranks in the United States, Porto Rico, Hawaii, and Philippine Islands, and to the 50,000 garden teachers of the United States, says—"To fail to bring to harvest the crops which have been planted is immoral. School days for the year are over, and millions of boys and girls will be turned loose with no provision for using their time constructively either in recreation or work.

"School gardens and school-supervised home gardens will furnish the greatly needed opportunity for constructive employment. Gardens must not be neglected during the summer months. No surer way could be devised of killing the great garden movement than to allow the weeds to destroy the crops already started by the boys and girls.

"Teachers should remain at their work until harvest time. This is being done by many teachers, and if it can be done by all will eliminate any chance of failure. Garden teachers cannot afford to have failure overtake their work."

Forces Within.

Trials without discover forces within. Says Victor Hugo: "There are instincts for all the crises of life." A deep perplexity awakens a flash of insight; a bitter opposition sets the soul on fire; a brave peril opens our eyes to horses and chariots of fire; a severe catastrophe evokes a heroism of which the sufferer had not thought himself capable.—W. L. Watkinson.
